KeyKegs and why we use them

We serve some of our house wines from KeyKeg. There are several reasons why we do this.

Key Kegs are an excellent method for serving wine. They are a semi hard plastic shell with a foil bag inside. This means that as wine is drawn from the keg it is never exposed to air. This means that we do not have to worry about when the wine bottle, which we're serving from, was last opened.

It is the guarantee of freshness in the wine that for us is most important. All of the wines we serve from keg are also available in bottle form and many are from genuinely exciting producers.

There are several ancillary benefits to the keg system. Using KeyKeg system for our most popular wines significantly reduces our carbon footprint, as we don't have to worry about the weight of the glass bottles that need to be shipped for the wine.
